NOTE: There are several images in this Update that are based on artwork. When the pins become available to me, I will scan them and if the scan significantly improves the image, I will issue "corrected pages". Normally, scanning the actual pin results in a much better image for the catalog. At least for this Update, folks have experienced longer delays in the transportation process from the factory to the customer. However, in fairness to the pin makers, I believe that ordering the pins a bit earlier would have eliminated some of this problem. Just a thought.
